

TheCaseSolutions.com

Number 1 in case studies solutions

Constitutional Reforms in Gambia

Introduction

The republic of the Gambia is a small Africa State in the west of the continent, especially; democratically within the past few years the nation has experience political transformations mainly through attempts to change constitution.

Background

During Jammeh rule The Gambia had the most unfavourable political laws that limited the powers of the other branches of government and provided virtually no checks on the executive branch. The new government that followed included President Adama Barrow understood the importance of reform in order to bring a better political system which was democratic in nature.

Gambian constitution

The challenges include: political rivalry, difference in public perception and scarce resources. The second only involves increasing the range of interest participation and actively including political parties and civil society organizations in the process, as one of the ways to achieve interparty consensus.

Conclusion

Constitutional changes in The Gambia are the major advancements towards the normalization in the country. Promoting and implementing the mentioned challenges and solutions will help in laying the basic foundation for building a just and sustainable society amid the new coming challenges in the Gambian society.

Resource

This case is just a sample partail case solution. Please place the order on the website to order your own orignally done case solution.

Resource: Visit thecasesolution.com for detailed analysis and more case studies.