Introduction

It is for this reason that leadership is of utmost importance in the nursing profession as proper and efficient management and direction could mean a world of difference in terms of care outcome and team or health care organizational productivity.

Nursing Practice

However, leadership is not just a preserve of supervisors in the nursing profession but individuals who hold leadership positions.

Both staff nurses, team leaders, as well as the managers have leadership skills of the patient care coordination, delegation of duties and coordination of work within the group.

The background of the slide is a detailed historical painting of a coastal city, likely Constantinople, viewed from a high vantage point. The city is built on a hillside overlooking a large harbor. In the foreground, several large sailing ships with multiple masts and white sails are docked or moving through the water. To the left, a group of smaller, rowing vessels is visible. The city's architecture includes domed buildings and a prominent minaret. The sky is filled with soft, golden light, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. The overall style is that of a classical oil painting.

Essentials Skills

Communication is important to directly care for patients, families, and medical staff members providing attention to such patients. Failure to communicate in an efficient manner leads to many mistakes and mar the working relations with other teams.

Conclusion

In conclusion, leadership is significant in the nursing profession in the aspect of patient care as well as the performance of the members. The study shows that leadership is an essential element for organisational performance of nurses besides enhancing healthcare sector outcomes.
