CUNA MS – PERU'S EARLY CHILDHOOD PROGRAM STRUGGLES TO MAINTAIN QUALITY

INTRODUCTION

About Cuna Más Cuna Más is an organization established by the government of Peru for the purpose of enhancing the development on young children in rural areas. It is concern with early childcare and education before the age of three years. It has been though vital for addressing issues of poverty as well as supporting early learning and education but faces major barriers in the issue of quality delivery across the various areas.

PROBLEMS

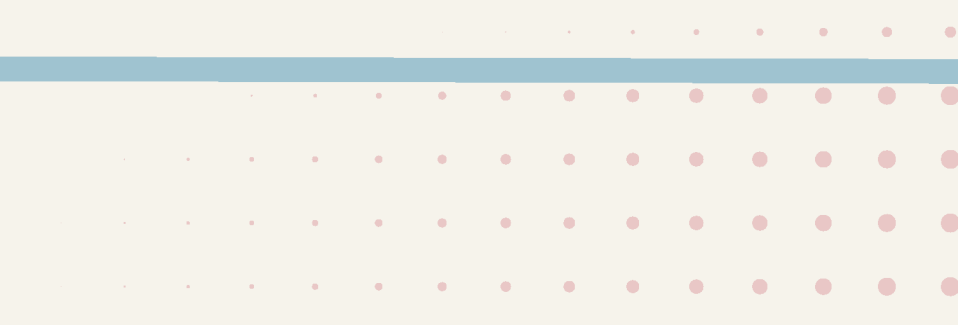

Problems in Quality Assurance The major problem identified regarding Cuna Más is that it is not easy to provide efficient quality provision given the large part of the country that it covers. A major challenge in the provision of such services in most rural areas in Peru is a concern of infrastructure, resource, and human capacity.

DEFICIENCIES

Deficiencies in monitoring and evaluation practices A relatively major weakness is the lack of adequate monitoring and evaluation for assessing progress made by the program. Lacking such a system makes it challenging to find out areas of growth deficit or the way child development will be affected in the future, if it is affected at all.

CONCLUSION

Overall, Cuna Más is an important program for the early childhood development concerned with the rural population of Peru, however, the program faces a great many obstacles affecting the quality of the work done.

Overcoming these issues such as by improving the training and development of the staff
