LEADING WITH EMPATHY: TARANA BURKE AND THE MAKING OF THE ME TOO MOVEMENT

INTRODUCTION

The case of "Leading With Empathy: The major theme in the article entitled "From Ignite to Insurge: Tarana Burke and the Making of the Me Too Movement" is the personal development of Tarana Burke, the creator of the Me Too movement that has greatly influenced the discourses on sexual harassment and assault in the world. Thus, this case establish the principles of empathy, leadership and activism for the change of society, as well as the ways that deed successful of the movement to gain that recognition.

EMPATHY IN LEADERSHIP

Empathy could be seen as a key characteristic in understanding Tarana Burke's operations because the ability to connect with the survivors of sexual violence enabled her emergence as the leader of this movement. Through the real life example of the Burke's story, it is seen how the skills that she possessed like the ability to listen as well as to encourage others became the trunk of her action.

DEVELOPMENT

When the Me Too movement extended to the international level, it experience some problems such as opposition, misconceptions, and the problem of dealing with the structural factors such as sexual harassment. The case discusses some of the difficulties that Tarana Burke encountered; each of them is analyzed to stress the necessity to preserve the purity of the BLM idea.

CONCLUSION

The "Leading With Empathy: In her lecture "Empathy and the #MeToo Movement: "Tarana Burke and the Making of the Me Too Movement" it is essential to highlight the significance of empathy and grass-root activism triggering the entire world's shift. ACETs and their evolution as led by Tarana Burke shows that movements can be developed from compassionate, authentic and purposeful foundation.

RECOMMENDATION

This is just a sample partial case solution. Please place the order on the website to order your own originally done case solution.

Resource: Visit thecasesolutions.com for detailed analysis and more case studies.