

THE ROAD TO WAR SEPTEMBER 2002 TO MARCH 2003

INTRODUCTION

The case "The Road to War: "September 2002 to March 2003" is mainly centered round the build up to the Iraq War and concerns itself with the strategic, political and diplomatic processes at this juncture. Beginning of September 2002 to mid-March 2003 saw negotiation between players such as America, United Nations and Iraq through negotiations, arms inspections as well as preparation for military action that eventually culminated in the invasion of Iraq.

KEY POLITICAL DYNAMICS

Therefore, on this period the Bush administration constructed the evidences for war including the secret programs for developing WMD in the country of Iraq. They said this statement was central to framing Iraq's image as a menace to global stability just as it played a crucial role in the construction of Iraq as a menace to international order.

DIPLOMATIC EFFORTS

Great diplomatic measures were taken to avert war with emphasis being placed on the United Nations Security Council. France, Russia and Germany especially were very vocal in their condemnation of the use of force arguing for more inspections and more time for diplomacy.

CONCLUSION

The case is very insightful for those who would wish to explore the politics of diplomacy and intelligence gathering and the influence that led to the Iraq War. Knowledge of such factors assists in explaining how the international conflicts develop, which can be the product of political games, misunderstandings or clashes of the national interests.
